Dear Parents and Guardians of Incoming Freshmen and New Students,

Weston High School operates a Bring Your Own Laptop (BYOL) program where students bring their own laptop to school for daily use to support specific classroom instructional activities. Students will be able to checkout a device, as needed, to support this classroom use if they are not able to bring a device to school.

Our goal is to provide an excellent education. One important aspect of this goal is to leverage technology tools to help manage the delivery and assessment of curriculum. To do this, students need a dedicated device that can:

- Provide access to rich content (text, audio, video, and the online world of factual knowledge)
- Allow for space/time independence of learning (student can review, research, and explore content at their own pace and within the context of their lives)
- Assist students with executive functioning skills and communication tools
- Provide pragmatic productivity tools for production of student work and demonstration of understanding
- Prepare students for their digital lives in college and beyond

Our expectation is that there will be steady development of new pedagogical techniques, utilizing the distinct advantages offered by ready access to technology in the classroom. The five bulleted points above, along with strong pedagogy, articulate a recipe for a powerful learning environment.

For more detail about the BYOL program, visit the FAQ and Device Requirements online document.

Best,

Anthony Parker
